How Not to Cheat on Your Homework

You May Not:

- Copy any or all of the homework from anyone else.
- Look at pre-written solutions to any of the homework questions, either online or in the instructor’s textbook solutions. You may not read another student’s completed assignment before it is due.
- Try to get Dr. Raynor, the TAs, or the Math Center tutors to tell you the answer to any of the questions, or to get them to write out part or all of the solutions to any question.

You May:

- Talk to your fellow students about the homework. You are welcome, indeed encouraged, to collaborate and share ideas about how to do the homework.
- Ask Dr. Raynor, the TAs, or the Math Center tutors about the concepts behind the homework questions. Sometimes, they may be able to give you a hint to get you started in the right direction, but they will not do your homework for you.
- Check your answers with other students on computation problems after completing the question to see if your answers agree.

You Must:

- Write up every single assigned homework question yourself, in your own words, showing all of your work so Dr. Raynor can see that you, personally, understand the concept behind each step.
